

EVIDENCE-BASED MENTAL HEALTH

Evidence-Based Mental Health is a quarterly journal that will alert you to important advances in treatment, diagnosis, aetiology, prognosis, continuing education, economic evaluation and qualitative research in mental health. We select and summarize the highest quality original and review articles.

Would you rather read 50,000 articles or 96?

We scan over 100 journals and around 50,000 articles a year so that we can identify the most important and valid 96 research articles and publish them in Evidence-Based Mental Health. This means that if you read Evidence-Based Mental Health, you'll get all the important research material you need in just 4 volumes that are published throughout the year, saving you all important time to concentrate on other things.

To further emphasise the point, in a recent study*, it was found that you'd have to read 227 articles in the Lancet or 118 articles in the New England Journal of Medicine to get the relevant information that would be contained in 1 Evidence-Based Mental Health article.

Evidence-Based Mental Health publishes 'Other articles noted' which includes mentions of high quality articles that were not abstracted but are still recommended reading. And all the articles are rated for clinical relevance and newsworthiness so you'll be able to quickly and clearly see how relevant the article will be to you, again, saving you time.

*"What do evidence-based secondary journals tell us about the publication of clinically important articles in primary healthcare journals?"; Kathleen Ann McKibbin, Nancy L Wilczynski and Robert Brian Haynes, Sept 2004. Available at BioMed Central.
