

INJURY PREVENTION

All aspects of injury research

Injury Prevention (IP) is a peer-reviewed journal which encompasses all aspects of injury prevention research. In each bi-monthly issue we publish original research, opinions and focus on the prevention of injury in all age groups, including child and adolescent injuries and all types of unintentional injury, as well as occupational and intentional (violence-related) injuries.

Broad appeal

More than a collection of original articles, brief reports and methodological issues, Injury Prevention aims to appeal to both academics and front-line workers.

Injury Prevention regularly includes a News and Notes section and many other special features: program reports, guest editorials, commentaries, fillers, book reviews, and letters.

IP is a truly international journal with a large and distinguished editorial board which represents 20 different countries.
