

THORAX

A high citation index together with rapid publication makes Thorax a leading international journal in its specialty. Thorax has a longstanding reputation for publishing leading global clinical and experimental research.

The leading European respiratory journal

Thorax is the highest ranked European journal covering all aspects of pulmonary medicine. Thorax provides coverage of recent developments in basic biomedical sciences and publishes a regular review series to keep you abreast of advances.

Subscribers to Thorax receive educational supplements in addition to the 12 monthly issues of the journal. These supplements are all fully peer reviewed.

Thorax is essential reading for those involved in thoracic or respiratory disciplines.

Thorax is the official journal of the British Thoracic Society.

Great online features and functionality

The Thorax website contains all the content from the print version as well as valuable online features that take advantage of the latest technology.

Find content quickly – Sophisticated searching, subject collections, email alerting, RSS feeds and full text links from cited references are all available on the site.

Interactive services – Personal folders, citation trackers, electronic letters, education and more.

Online First – Most articles are published online shortly after they are accepted and well before they are published in print.

Online submission and peer review – Our simple and secure online submission service provides a faster peer review process and 24 hour access to information on your paper's status.

Find out more – Our 'click guide' details all the outstanding features of the Thorax website. Download a copy from the journal homepage.

See your work published in Thorax

- Impact Factor: 5.040
(2nd out of 33 in Respiratory Medicine)
- Rapid decisions
- Rapid publication (Online First)
- Worldwide Readership
- Online submission and peer review

Click the 'Online Submissions' button on the Thorax homepage to submit a paper.

www.thoraxjnl.com